RESEARCH PROGRAM

Program of research concentrates on the etiology and prevention of health risk behaviors (e.g., alcohol misuse) and poor mental health (e.g., depression and generalized anxiety), and aims to understand social determinants of health and inequities affecting Hispanic communities and other under-resourced populations. Primary research interests are 1) social stressors and coping resources in relation to alcohol misuse and poor mental health/psychological distress, and 2) evidence-based health interventions for under-resourced populations.
